DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over JP 63020361 OF RECORD ON 1449.

The reference discloses a method/ apparatus for manufacturing electrically conductive macromolecules such as pyrrole by reacting pyrrole vapor into contact with an oxidizing agent such as ferric chloride in a specified wt ratio while controlling the temperature and the contact time to polymerize pyrrole in that steam is added to the reaction system to allow the polymn. Of pyrrole to proceed more smoothly.

The disclosure of the reference differs from the instant claims in that it does not disclose the use of a supersaturated steam atmosphere in a closed system such as vessel.

However, the reference does disclose the use of a pyrrole vapor heating at high temperature in that the vapor must be contained in a closed system such as a vessel, in the claims or in a mold in the reference . Further, a steam is added to the reaction system does define the use of a supersaturated steam in the mold.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use the pyrrole vapor and the steam in the mold to define the reaction of the pyrrole and ferric chloride in a closed system that contains a supersaturated steam atmosphere since they have been shown to be effective in a similar system and thus would have been expected to provide adequate results. There is no showing of unexpected results derived from said use.
